RCABC and AFFILIATES

The Personal Information Protection Act of British Columbia ("the Act") regulates the way private sector organizations within British Columbia collect, use, keep, secure and disclose personal information. "Personal Information" means all information about an identifiable individual.

The Roofing Contractors Association of BC (RCABC) and its affiliates, the RCABC Educational Foundation (REF) which manages the Roofing Institute, and the RCABC Guarantee Corp. (RGC), is committed to protecting the privacy of individuals whose personal information is collected and held at our shared facility in Langley BC. As part of our commitment to you, we want to clarify why we may ask for your personal information.

Our Need for Personal Information

We collect your personal information in order to set up your firm's account, to accurately deliver newsletters and information that may affect your business decisions, to provide an account of any professional development courses you have taken at the Roofing Institute, to conduct surveys to determine your opinion regarding internal or external issues of mutual interest to members of the roofing community and generally, to provide you with the types of services expected by members and clients of a professional trades association.

Collection, Use and Disclosure of Personal Information

Where practical, we endeavour to collect personal information directly from the person to whom the information pertains. When necessary, we will collect personal information from other sources.

The Act does not apply to the contact information provided to us by member business, if that information pertains to an individual who is an employee, partner or owner of that business in his or her capacity as the contact person for that business.

If you are an individual to whom the Act applies, by asking RCABC or one of its affiliates to provide services to you, you consent to our necessary collection, use or disclosure of the individual's personal information in order to properly provide the requested services to the individual.

It is our policy to collect personal information about individuals in accordance with the provisions of the Personal Information Protection Act of British Columbia.

The Act deems that an individual has consented to our collection, use or disclosure of personal information about that individual if, at the time the consent is deemed to be given, the purpose would be considered obvious to a reasonable person. In such circumstances, we will collect, use or disclose personal information without obtaining a written or verbal consent to do so.

The Act also permits us to collect, use or disclose personal information about an individual in some circumstances without the individual's consent. Those include (but are not limited to) circumstances in which:

- the collection, use or disclosure is clearly in the interests of the individual and consent cannot be obtained in a timely way;
- it is reasonable to expect that the collection or use of personal information with the consent of the individual would compromise the availability or accuracy of the information, and the collection or use of the information is necessary for an investigation or proceeding;
- it is reasonable to expect that the disclosure of personal information with the consent of the individual would compromise an investigation or proceeding, and the disclosure of the information is necessary for an investigation or proceeding;
- the personal information is available to the public from a prescribed source;
- the collection, use or disclosure of personal information is required or authorized by law.

When we collect, use or disclose personal information, we will make reasonable efforts to ensure that it is accurate and complete.

Security of Personal Information

We recognize our legal obligations to protect the confidential information of our members and others who provide us with their personal information. We have therefore made arrangements to secure against the unauthorized access, collection, use, disclosure, copying, modification, disposal or destruction of personal information.

An individual's ability to access his or her personal information under our control is not absolute. The Act provides that we must not disclose personal information when:

- the disclosure could reasonably be expected to threaten the safety or physical or mental health of an individual other than the individual who made the request;
- the disclosure can reasonably be expected to cause immediate or grave harm to the safety or to the physical or mental health of the individual who made the request;
- the disclosure would reveal personal information about another individual;
- the disclosure would reveal the identity of an individual who has provided personal information about another individual and the individual providing the personal information does not consent to disclosure of his or her identity.

The Act further provides that we are not required to disclose personal information when:

- the personal information is protected by solicitor-client privilege;
- the disclosure of the personal information would reveal confidential commercial information that, if disclosed, could, in the opinion of a reasonable person, harm the competitive position of an organization;
